Coalition For Education Justice (CEJ)
5927 Great Oak Circle
Highland Park, California 90042
Byron Gudiel, CEJ Staff Organizer
Website: www.cbecal.org

The Coalition for Education Justice was created by a group of teachers, students and parents in the Los Angeles Unified School District “to fight for a quality education, to challenge the entrenched structures of racism and mediocrity that characterize Los Angeles Unified School District.” CEJ has successfully pressed LAUSD to accept parental waivers from standardized tests, to recognize teachers’ rights to have sample waivers available to give to parents, and to create a Task Force on Alternative Assessments. Working with school-based chapters, CEJ has also achieved numerous victories at school sites resulting in improved school environment, reduced class size, improved access to public transportation to and from school, additional counselors and clerical staff. In 2007, CEJ parent, student, and teacher organizers were central to driving a grassroots process that brought two high schools into the LAUSD Innovation Division. Hazen’s one-year core grants of $35,000 in 2008 and 2009 supports their campaign work which strives to reduce class sizes, increase local control of schools, increase the number of bilingual education programs in LAUSD by organizing a strong base of parents, students and teachers.
Community Partners for Community Asset Development Re-Defining Education (CADRE)
8510 ½ South Broadway
Los Angeles, California 90003
Maisie Chin, Director
Website: www.cadre-la.org

CADRE is a multi-ethnic parent led organization in South Los Angeles founded in 2002. CADRE utilizes a human rights framework for their work on education, driven by their understanding that insufficient resources, low expectations, alienation of parents and “zero tolerance” disciplinary practices combine to drive students out of school. Their organizing resulted in the District’s adoption of a revised discipline policy emphasizing supports for positive behavior and early intervention rather than suspensions and expulsions and provides specific roles for parent involvement. They are using the new discipline policy as a springboard for changing conditions and institutional culture to re-emphasize quality teaching and learning at schools in Local District 7. Hazen’s one-year core grants of $35,000 in 2008 and 2009 will support CADRE’s work to ensure that the new policy is enacted and to address undemocratic school environments in which parents as primary stakeholders are restricted from effectively holding schools accountable.

Community Coalition For Substance Abuse Treatment
8101 S. Vermont Ave
Los Angeles, California 90044
Marqueece Harris-Dawson Executive Director
Website: www.cocosouthla.org

Founded in 1990 in direct response to the crack epidemic, the Community Coalition for Substance Abuse Prevention is a leading center for grassroots organizing in South Los Angeles. In 1991, Community Coalition established its youth project, South Central Youth Empowered thru Action (SCYEA). SCYEA led a coalition that achieved victory mandating the “A-G” curriculum (a college-prep curriculum) as the default for all Los Angeles high school students in the Los Angeles Unified School District. In 2007, SCYEA and Community Coalition waged another successful campaign which prioritized South LA high schools for support through the Quality Education Investment Act (Q EIA), earning over $350 million for all South LA high schools, middle schools and fourteen elementary schools. Community Coalition continues making strides with its’ Construction Technology Academy campaign, advocating for a high school offering career, trade and vocational education that meets the A-G curriculum requirements, preparing students for highly sought after union apprenticeships and post secondary education. Hazen’s one-year core grants of $35,000 in 2008 and 2009 will fund the Coalition and SCYEA’s work on equity in education.
LA Voice-PICO

Los Angeles, California 90005
Jared Rivera Executive Director
Website: www.lavoicepico.org

LA VOICE PICO is a member of the PICO national organizing network and is a congregation-based organizing group working to impact the quality of education in Los Angeles, specifically in Boyle Heights and South Los Angeles. Located in Ramona Gardens (one of the oldest and largest public housing developments in the city) is Murchison Elementary School and north of Murchison is the community of El Sereno that has El Sereno Elementary and El Sereno Middle School, where less than 22 percent of the students meet state proficiency standards in all subjects. LA Voice PICO is mobilizing parents in an effort to transform Murchison from a K-5 to K-8 school and to develop a Parent-Teacher Home Visit program, a model developed by the PICO network which contributed to improvements in school/family relationships, student attendance, teacher retention and educational outcomes. Hazen’s grant of $35,000 in 2008 will support LA Voice PICO’s community organizing efforts to improve education/parent engagement in El Sereno/Ramona Gardens schools.

3655 S. Grand Ave., Suite 250
Los Angeles, California 90007
Peter Kuhns Lead Organizer
Website: www.acorn.org

Los Angeles ACORN, a member of the national organizing network, was established in 1995 and today comprises 3,000 dues paying members in South Los Angeles. Since 2003, ACORN leaders and staff have been developing a relationship with the United Teachers of Los Angeles, working together to pass legislation mandating stricter regulation of factories and other polluters located near schools. In 2006 LA ACORN began its campaign for the establishment of a Peer Mentor Program for new teachers and has recently launched a campaign for a teacher retention program within Jefferson/Santee area schools. Hazen’s core grants of $35,000 in 2008 and 2009 will enable them to expand their campaigns and to build the capacity of parent leadership to improve the quality of education in their community’s schools.
The Southern California Education Fund was established by ONE LA, an affiliate of the Industrial Areas Foundation, as the training and education entity through which it is pursuing educational improvement and reform in Los Angeles and Southern California. At the school site, they organize teachers, parents and administrators to improve the school culture and promote effective teaching and learning; at the District level, they have also won improvements in policies and practices that undermine student achievement, including timely dispersal of special intervention funds so all students can have access to support services from the first day of the term, not half way into the school year as had previously been the case. Hazen’s one-year core grants of $35,000 in 2008 and 2009 support One LA-IAF to continue their work to increase the number of One LA member institutions and active leaders who are engaged in organized action to support strategies and policies for high quality public education for low-income LAUSD students of color.

InnerCity Struggle (ICS)
2811 W hittier Blvd
Los Angeles, California 90023
Maria Brenes Executive Director
Website: www.innercitystruggle.org

InnerCity Struggle (ICS) is an intergenerational community organization in East Los Angeles. ICS is committed to improving the quality of education for all students in their community and equally dedicated to the success of the individual students engaged in their work. Over the past three years the graduation rate among their members has been 95% and 100% of the graduates are enrolled in higher education. ICS has also been a key member of the coalition that secured access to the A-G college prep curriculum for all LAUSD students. ICS’s organizing was instrumental in getting the school board to commit to building a new high school in East LA, the first to be built in 80 years and, subsequently, to commit to a new elementary school and an adult school. With one-year core grants of $35,000 in 2008 and 2009 from Hazen, ICS continues to build the education organizing efforts of parents, youth and community residents to win educational justice policy changes that push for increased college preparatory classes and decreased practices of expulsion and suspension in East Los Angeles public schools and LAUSD.

Citizens For A Better Greenville, INC.
P.O. Box 5673
Greenville, Mississippi 38703
Joyce-Hall Parker, Director

Citizens for a Better Greenville (CBG) was founded in 2001 and focuses on improving the quality of education for elementary and high school students in Greenville, MS. CBG has worked on issues including services for students with special needs, composition of the school board, parent/teacher relations and addressing zero tolerance policies as a member of the statewide Prevention of Schoolhouse to Jailhouse Coalition. Most recently, CBG developed a partnership with the Greenville Public School District and successfully advocated for direct parental involvement on six advisory groups including the selection process for appointing the interim superintendent. CBG also supported policy implementation for the rights of parents to have a control over a portion of federal dollars earmarked for parental involvement. Hazen’s one-year core grants of $35,000 in 2008 and 2009 supports CBG’s efforts to continue increasing parental involvement, partnering with the Mississippi Department of Education to develop drop-out prevention plans and to work with statewide coalitions, such as the Prevention of Schoolhouse to Jailhouse, Dismantling the Achievement Gap, and Mississippi Education Working Group.

Concerned Citizens For A Better Tunica County
1028 Prichard Road
Tunica, Mississippi 38676
Melvin Young, Executive Director

Established in 1993, Concerned Citizens For A Better Tunica County, Inc. (Concerned Citizens) is a broad based grassroots leadership development, education, and training organization developing new leaders and organizers in Tunica and neighboring counties. In 1999, Concerned Citizens established a youth component, Tunica Teens in Action (TTIA). Concerned Citizens successfully built a partnership with the school district to design a comprehensive five-year education plan for Tunica County Public Schools which aims to obtain qualified teachers, college readiness curriculum, diplomas for special education students and decision-making power for parents and students in the schools. Concerned Citizens is now assisting in the evaluation and revision of the education plan and supported the appointments of 2 new deputy superintendents to help implement the plan. Concerned Citizens was awarded one-year core grants of $35,000 in 2008 and 2009 to continue their work to ensure full implementation of the 5 year plan for the Tunica County School District and to improve state level funding and policy by organizing parents in 3 neighboring counties.

Ellen Reddy Executive Director
Website: www.citizensforqualityeducation.net

Nollie Jenkins Family Center (NJFC, formerly known as Citizens for Quality Education or CQE) is an intergenerational organizing group working to develop grassroots leaders in Holmes County. NJFC coordinates two local projects, the Parent Education, Training and Support Program (PETS) and Youth Governance Initiative. PETS trains parents in organizing skills and on education policy such as the state assessment system, students rights in suspension, expulsion and Youth Court proceedings, and procedures for accessing services for children with disabilities. Most recently, NJFC sponsored a county-wide training to educate parents, students and school personnel about the impact of student testing results and how to enable parents to become effective advocates for their children utilizing Title 1 requirements. NJFC was awarded core grants of $35,000 in 2008 and 2009 from Hazen to continue its organizing work on education reform, including the development of working relationships with Parent Teacher Associations (PTA), providing training to its membership on the Mississippi Accountability Model and assisting in the development of dropout prevention strategies. They will also continue working collaboratively with the Mississippi Delta Catalyst Roundtable to impact education funding at the state level.

Launched in 2002 with the support of the Hazen Foundation, Make The Road New York’s Education Justice Project has built a base of hundreds of committed parents who have won major changes in school and regional leadership, co-founded a local high school, and catalyzed the city’s investment of more than 10 million dollars of funding for translation and interpretation services for immigrant parents. Make the Road New York is a founding member of two City-wide collaboratives of organizing groups, The Urban Youth Collaborative and the Coalition for Educational Justice. MTRNY has also recently finalized an exciting merger with the Latin American Integration Center, a community organization based in Queens and Staten Island. With core grants of $35,000 in 2008 and 2009 from the Hazen Foundation, MTRNY will establish a pilot program to improve the quality of instruction, increase counseling services and support a more well-rounded curriculum at targeted intermediate schools. The Education Justice Project will also continue to monitor implementation of school translation and interpretation services, continue the City-wide (CEJ) middle school reform platform, improve teacher quality, provide counseling and support services and work with allies to secure a commitment from the City to increase funding by at least $180 million a year for English Language Learners as part of the Campaign for Fiscal Equity (CFE) Settlement. MTRBW will also implement “Model Middle School” Program to improve the quality of teaching, access to counseling and support services, and develop a well-rounded curriculum at two middle schools in Bushwick and one middle school in Queens.

Mothers on the Move / Madres en Movimiento (MOM) received a one-year $30,000 grant from the Hazen Foundation in 2008. MOM is a member-led organization building effective leadership skills among South Bronx residents since 1992. They began their education reform work in 1994 to organize parents to advocate for school improvement in the South Bronx. MOM works with a cluster of schools in the Hunts Point, Longwood, West Farms, Soundview, Morrisania, Mott Haven, Melrose and Port Morris neighborhoods of the South Bronx, which are primarily Black and Puerto Rican with a recent influx of new immigrants, primarily Dominicans, Central Americans, Mexicans and Africans. Youth on the Move (YOM), a student-led effort to address issues relevant to high school and middle school students, and district-level accountability efforts is also a member of the City-wide urban Youth Collaborative. Youth on the Move is organizing students in the South Bronx to create a Student Safety policy that addresses students needs to be safe from violence, criminalization, harassment. YOM is also working with the UYC and the New York Civil Liberties Union to pass the Student Safety Act that would create a system for complaints and accountability.

New Settlement Apartments (NSA)

Bronx, New York 10452
Jack Doyle, Executive Director
718-716-8000

New Settlement Apartments (NSA) is a housing and community-building organization with a demonstrated track record of 17 years in community youth development, community service and community organizing toward education reform in public schools. The Parent Action Committee (PAC) is a parent and community organizing project of NSA, begun by a small group of parents in 1997 concerned with the poor quality of education in the Southwest Bronx. Now 900 members strong, the PAC is led by 33 parents and a professional staff who guide campaigns in five underperforming schools in Community School District 9 (PS 64, MS 22, PS/MS 4, PS/MS 218 and PS 88). NSA is also a founding member of Community Collaboration to improve Bronx schools (CCB), a coalition of community–based organizations working for improvement in the quality of education in the Bronx. With core grants of $35,000 in 2008 and 2009 grant from Hazen, PAC will organize approximately 15 schools in District 9 and 10, including middle and high school schools. Independently as PAC and also as part of CCB/CEJ, NSA plans to improve principal and teacher training and retention; improve college preparatory curriculum and counseling, as well as strengthening relationships between schools and communities. PAC will continue to work on its campaigns for improved dual-language programs, improved safety and toward recognition of the two most important Muslim holidays as school holidays.

Website: http://www.poweru.org/

Power U has been working with parents and students to develop a response to the two issues of inequitable resource allocation and outcomes for students and the impact of gentrification in Overtown. Over the last few years, the youth members of Power U have researched discipline policies, zero tolerance and the impact on drop out/push outs. Power U’s outreach targets young people in schools, GED programs and detention facilities so a number of members have personal experience of the problem. Together they have developed a set of demands around discipline practices utilizing a restorative justice framework. With one year core renewal grants of $35,000 from Hazen in 2008 and 2009, Power U will continue to push for implementation of Restorative Justice. They will also build their relationships with youth service providers in support of the Restorative Justice campaign and implement an after school program to implement their “College of Leadership” Curriculum on site at Booker T Washington High School.

Alliance for Educational Justice (AEJ)
1611 Telegraph Avenue, Suite 510
Oakland, CA 94612

The Alliance for Educational Justice (AEJ) was started in December 2008 through a group of 30 highly experienced and effective organizers and key allies who envisioned the potential for work that drew from local organizing, but could achieve national impact. A Strategy Team was created with a set of shared core values and a commitment to meet regularly in order to accomplish the next set of tasks. Since then, the Strategy Team has engaged in planning and implementation of common research and political education across the 20 member organizations. They have held regional convenings and a national convening in September culminating with a meeting with US Department of Education officials and 20 legislative visits at which they presented their policy platform. A two-year grant of $100,000 will help support AEJ toward building a national youth-led alliance for educational justice and strengthening the capacity and leadership of participating organizations to impact local, regional and national policy on education.

Ng’ethe Maina, Executive Director
Website: www.sojustlead.org

Social Justice Leadership (SJL) was established five years ago by several experienced organizers who believed that the previous models of organizational structure and culture prevalent in the field did not support the healthy development of individuals and organizations. SJL founding organizers sought to create a new model for effective community organization that is values driven, reflective, uncompromising on results and has a perspective on social change that is collaborative, strategic and long-term in its outlook. Over the past five years, SJL has implemented three core training and support programs in New York City, launched a movement-building collective training program with thirteen organizations in NYC and initiated a leadership training program with six to eight organizations in South Florida. With a one-year $30,000 grant from Hazen, SJL will implement the Transformative Organizing Initiative (TOI), which will integrate the three existing training programs into a single movement building training program to reach through all levels of an organization’s staff and membership.

Leroy Johnson, Executive Director
Website: www.southernecho.org

Created in 1989, Southern Echo (Echo) is a successful statewide intergenerational, leadership education, training and development organization that uses community organizing strategies and technical assistance to support grassroots community organizations in Mississippi and the Southeastern region. With Mississippi state ranking 48th in the nation for education funding, Echo organized The Catalyst Roundtable (an alliance comprised of 35 organizations), to secure full funding of the Mississippi Adequate Education Program (MAEP, a formula to provide equity and adequacy in funding for public schools) by the Mississippi legislature in 2007 and 2008. With pressure from Echo and the Catalyst Roundtable, the legislature appointed a commission on under-performing schools to study and report back to the legislature on the policy changes needed to build a quality public education accessible to all children and what it will take to finance these changes. With a Hazen grant of $80,000 over two years, Echo will continue to strengthen the capacity of Roundtable groups including an increase of parent participation and an increase of education funding at the state level, including full funding of MAEP.

CAAAV Organizing Asian Communities (CAAV) organizes low income Asian immigrant communities in Chinatown and the Bronx, New York. Through the Chinatown Justice Project (CJP), launched in 2000, Fujianese immigrant youth organize low-income Chinese tenants and immigrant street vendors to challenge displacement and gentrification in Chinatown. The Youth Leadership Project (YLP) based in the Southeast Asian community in the Bronx, focuses on combating poverty through economic development, employment, public education, criminal justice, immigration/anti-deportation, and a health justice campaign. YLP is currently co-creating a Comprehensive War Survivors Health Program with Montefiore Hospital and CJP continues inter-generational organizing of low-income Asians waging strategic campaigns for long-term policy changes in the areas of housing and economic justice. CAAAV was awarded a $35,000 renewal grant in 2008 and a two-year $60,000 grant in 2009 from Hazen to support YLP and CJP’s ongoing work to advance campaigns within the Southeast Asian refugee and Chinatown tenant communities.

Jeremy Lahoud, Executive Director
Website: www.caljustice.org

Founded in 1995, Californians for Justice (CFJ) is a statewide, grassroots organization that works in five regions: Oakland, San Jose, San Diego, Long Beach and Fresno. CFJ trains and organizes high school aged youth to win local and statewide policies that support quality education for all of California’s students. In 2007, CFJ increased their youth membership by 16%, bringing their total membership to 1160 youth, young adults, parents and community members. CFJ waged four local campaigns in 2008; all focused on winning improved college access policies in local school districts. Their Long Beach campaign significantly shifted the terms of the public debate in the school district around college preparatory ‘A through G’ curriculum and in Fresno, they won a key victory decreasing the ratio of students per college counselor from 1 per 700 students to 1 per 400. CFJ was awarded a $30,000 grant in 2008 and a $30,000 grant in 2009 to continue developing an active core of youth leaders from low-income communities of color who will fight for racial justice in California’s public schools and launch local, youth-led campaigns to address key education issues at the school site and/or school district level.

Coalition On Homelessness And Housing In Ohio
175 South 3d Suite 250
Columbus, Ohio 43215
Website: www.cohhioyep.org

The Coalition on Homelessness and Housing in Ohio (COHHIO) was founded in 1994 as a statewide coalition of organizations and individuals committed to ending homelessness and promoting decent, safe, fair, and affordable housing for Ohio residents. The Youth Empowerment Project (YEP) was established in 2000 to provide homeless youth with the skills and support to organize their peers and improve the living conditions of homeless families in Ohio. Since 2001, because of YEP and the coalition’s efforts, education funding for homeless youth has increased from $900,000 to $2 million in Ohio. During the past two years, YEP’s campaigns have been successful supporting policies to raise the minimum wage, increase access to higher education and expand Medicaid eligibility for youth aging out of foster care. COHHIO was awarded a renewal grant of $60,000 over 2 years to support YEP in its efforts to develop and sustain youth councils statewide that organize for educational and housing access for homeless youth and to spearhead campaigns demanding reform of the zero tolerance disciplinary policies in high schools.

Coleman Advocates for Children, Youth and Families
459 Vienna Street
San Francisco, California 94112
N’Tanya Lee, Executive Director
Website: www.colemanadvocates.org

Coleman Advocates for Children Youth and Families was awarded a $30,000 renewal grant in 2009 to support Youth Making a Change (Y-MAC), to build its membership base and implement its Jobs 4 Youth Campaign. Coleman Advocates will continue to build its Y-MAC membership base and implement youth-led campaigns that support youth employment and educational equity.

Desis Rising Up & Moving (DRUM)
72-18 Roosevelt Avenue
Jackson Heights, NY 11372
Monami Malik, Executive Director
Website: www.drumnation.org

Founded in 1999, Desis Rising Up and Moving (DRUM) is a multigenerational, membership organization of low-income South Asian immigrants in New York City. In 2001, DRUM created the YouthPower! Project to build the leadership capacity of Desi (Afghani, Bangladeshi, Pakistani, Indian, Indo-Caribbean and Nepali) youth and to engage them in direct action campaigns around immigrant rights issues. In recent years, youth leaders and organizers have conducted “Know Your Rights Training” for immigrant youth in high schools throughout New York City, and participated in the Stop the Disappearances Campaign aimed at ending the arrests, detention, abuse and deportation of South Asian and Muslim detainees. YouthPower! leaders and members are currently working on the Education, Not Deportation (END) campaign, that seeks concrete protections for undocumented immigrant students to access education services in local schools without the threat of deportation and to prevent school officials and police in schools from asking for or sharing information about student immigration status. YouthPower! was awarded a two-year grant of $60,000 in 2008 and a two-year grant of $60,000 in 2009 to develop the leadership of its members, expand its base, and work with its allies to meet the goals of the END campaign.

FIERCE
147 West 24th Street, 6th Floor
New York, New York 10011
646-336-6789
Website: www.fiercenyc.org

Founded in 2000, FIERCE is a New York City-based youth/young adult-run, multiracial organization comprised of LGBT youth of color (primarily homeless and low-income youth) that grew from their “Save Our Space” campaign, preventing displacement of LGBT youth from the Christopher Street Pier on the Hudson River of Manhattan due to gentrification. Their successful efforts allow service providers access to the Pier for free and yielded more city funding for late night service provision and peer outreach workers targeting LGBT youth at the Pier. For the past two years, FIERCE has successfully implemented “Education for Liberation Project” providing political education training for more than 125 LGBT youth of color to work on campaigns. With a $70,000 grant from Hazen over the next two years, FIERCE will continue to conduct their community organizing campaigns “Save Our Space” and the recent “LGBT Youth Center” which advocates for the inclusion of a community center for LGBT youth in any future development of the Pier.

Funders Collaborative on Youth Organizing (FCYO)
20 Jay Street, #210B
Brooklyn, New York 11201
Supriya Pillai, Executive Director
212-725-3386
Website: www.fcyo.org

Launched in February 2000, the Funders’ Collaborative on Youth Organizing (FCYO) is a collective of national, regional and local foundations and youth organizing practitioners dedicated to advancing youth organizing as a strategy for youth development and social justice. FCYO focuses on increasing the philanthropic, intellectual, and social capital necessary to strengthen and grow youth organizing. FCYO builds the direct capacity of youth organizing groups through its' grantmaking initiative, ReGenerations, as well as through periodic gatherings of youth organizing groups. FYCO was awarded a $30,000 grant in support of a new grant making initiative, The Leadership Development Pipeline to identify successful strategies in youth organizing groups which promote the leadership of young people of color in the broader social justice movement.

Oakland Kids First!
1924 Franklin, Suite 310
Oakland, California 94612
510-452-2043
Website: www.kidsfirstoakland.org

Oakland kids First! is a multiracial organization which creates opportunities for Oakland youth to positively transform their schools and communities through advocacy, organizing, creative arts and leadership training. REAL HARD, the youth organizing program of Kids First, is organizing a base of Oakland high school students to address Oakland’s low graduation and college attendance rates within a multi-year campaign. With Hazen’s support, Kids First developed the first peer academic counseling program in the Oakland Unified School District, Peers Advising Students to Succeed (PASS) and won several policy victories at the school site and district for it to be piloted. The pilot began in Fall 2007 at Oakland Technical High School, using the classroom as a training site for 38 youth to become youth organizers, academic mentors, and peer educators. Hazen's renewal grants of $35,000 in 2008 and $35,000 in 2009 will support Kids First Peer Counselor and Culture Change campaigns focused on building a critical mass of students organized to change power dynamics at their schools and the continued implementation of PASS.

Padres Unidos, Inc.
3025 W. 37th Avenue, Suite 206
Denver, Colorado 80211
Pam Martinez, Co-Director
Website: www.padresunidos.org

Formed in 1990 Padres Unidos (Padres) is a multi-issue, intergenerational grassroots community organization, led by people of color who organize primarily in the Latino community to foster equality and justice in education, immigration, and healthcare. Formed in 2000, Jovenes Unidos (Jovenes), the youth component of Padres, has been working with students on a very successful multi-pronged campaign, Freedom to Learn, which seeks to lower the dropout rate, increase attendance and graduation rates, stop the tracking of students of color into the Colorado prison system, and assist students, both documented and undocumented, to successfully attend college. In August 2008, Padres y Jóvenes Unidos claimed victory when new rewritten discipline policies were approved by the Denver Public School Board to dramatically reduce the numbers of in-school tickets and suspensions. With a renewal grant of $60,000 over two years, Padres will continue to address the barriers facing low-income youth of color to succeed in the public education system.

Philadelphia Student Union
5011 Baltimore Ave.
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19143
Website: www.phillystudentunion.org

Philadelphia Student Union (PSU) is a non-profit organization that was founded in 1995 by a group of young people who were concerned about quality education and decided school reform needed students as leaders in order to be successful. PSU continues to be a youth led organization with a mission to assist Philadelphia public high school students in organizing to transform public schools into places where all young people receive a high quality education, and to help young people across schools and communities connect their issues to build power locally and regionally. PSU currently has chapters at five schools. With Hazen's support of $35,000 in 2008 and a two-year grant of $60,000 in 2009, PSU is working on several campaigns including organizing to break West Philadelphia High School into four small schools that would be designed and controlled by the community, improving teaching and learning at Sayre High School, creating alternatives to privatization for seventy schools in Corrective Action II under NCLB and developing regional student activism around school funding equity.

Providence Youth Student Movement (PrYSM)

Providence, RI 02907
Kohei Ishihara Executive Director
Website: www.prysm.us

In 2009, The Hazen Foundation awarded PrYSM a grant of $30,000 to support its youth organizing efforts to impact educational reform and policy change, increase the leadership capacity of Southeast Asian (SEA) youth to mobilize around a social justice policy and campaign to improve police-community relations.

Southwest Workers Union
Centro Por La Justicia
P.O. Box 830706
San Antonio, Texas 78283
Genaro Rendon, Director
Website: www.swunion.org

Celebrating their 20th year anniversary, the Southwest Workers Union (SWU) is an organization of independent grassroots groups of low-wage workers, community residents, families and youth, united in one struggle for environmental justice, worker rights and community empowerment. In 1997, SWU formed the Youth Leadership Organization (YLO) and now has over 500 youth members, including its first high school chapter. YLO joined SWU’s first major civic engagement effort, Nuestra Voz, to demonstrate the political power of low-income families and increased the number of low-income voters at local city council elections in Hondo, TX. The YLO also played a critical role in SWU’s Energy and Climate Justice campaign to mobilize public opposition to building the first new nuclear reactors in the country in 30 years. With renewal grants of $35,000 in 2008 and $30,000 in 2009 from Hazen, SWU will continue supporting the expansion of YLO, building a base of youth leaders in public schools working for systemic change in education and the community.

Sunflower Community Action Network
2201 E 13th Street
Wichita, KS 67214-3169
Mr. Jason Selmon, Executive Director
Website: www.sunfloweract.org

Sunflower Community Action is a non-profit grassroots organization that provides leadership training that supports the self-empowerment of low-income people in Kansas. In 2003, Students United (SU) launched its campus based youth organizing project as part of Hope Street Youth Development, at two local high schools in response to a disproportionate amount of suspensions to students of color in Wichita, KS. A $35,000 grant in 2008 will provide toward support of Students United organizing campaigns to change zero-tolerance policies, expand the student court system and reduce the number of frivolous suspensions in Wichita schools.

Tenants And Workers United (TWU)
3801 Mount Vernon Avenue
Alexandria, Virginia 22305
Website: www.tenantsworkers.org

Tenants and Workers United (TWU) is a multi-generational organization comprised of low-income, Latino, African-American and multi-national immigrant communities in Alexandria, Fairfax County, and Prince William County, Virginia. Alexandria United Teens (AUT) is the youth arm of TWU and engages teens in organizing, base-building, and leadership development activities that build their power to address systemic inequalities and educational injustice. AUT was instrumental in winning $600,000 in public and private funding to open a $1.2 million building in Alexandria as a community center, which includes a dedicated space for youth organizing. In 2007, AUT launched their College Prep for All and Restorative Justice campaigns with a major report on unequal access to higher education opportunities. Their long-term goal is to have policies within the public school system that 1) prepare all young people in Alexandria County for four-year college attendance and 2) utilize restorative justice as an alternative to punishment. Hazen’s $70,000 grant over two years supports AUT’s College Preparation for All Campaign and the expansion of TWU’s youth base and leadership across the Northern Virginia region.

Voces De La Frontera
1027 S. 5th Street
Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53205
Christine Neumann Ortiz, Executive Director
414-643-1620
Website: www.vdlf.org

Voces de la Frontera (VF) opened in 2001 in the cities of Milwaukee and Racine, WI. VF’s mission is to educate low-wage immigrant workers and students about their rights, to promote organizing and advocate for policy change focusing on immigration reform and access to higher education for immigrant students. In 2003, VF formed its first of six high school chapters of Students United for Immigrant Rights (SUFRIR), comprised of predominately Latino students and has now started Students United for the Struggle (SUITs), a largely African American student chapter. VF won victories on in-state tuition for immigrant students; prevented several anti-immigrant worker bills from passing; and VF youth played a major role in the push for Comprehensive Immigration Reform conducting outreach resulting in record breaking turnouts for rallies in Milwaukee in 2006 and 2007. With grants of $25,000 in 2008 and $30,000 in 2009, VF will continue to develop SUFRIR and SUITS, focusing on immigration reform and the coordination of a statewide campaign for in-state tuition for immigrant students.

Youth United For Change
1910 N. Front Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19122
Andi Perez, Executive Director
Website: www.youthunitedforchange.com

Founded in 1992, Youth United for Change (YUC) provides students with tools to improve the quality of their education and their communities. YUC organizes and trains youth leaders in five North Philadelphia high schools and their surrounding communities with chapters averaging 25 core members at each high school. YUC has over 1,500 members, bringing Latino, African American, Asian and Caucasian youth together to take collective action addressing common concerns. YUC’s recent accomplishments include receiving a public commitment for the building of a new high school; the development of small high schools in Kensington and Olney high schools; and promotion of a policy that will provide an additional college component to required senior projects of students at Edison High School. A renewal grant of $60,000 over the next two years from Hazen will support YUC’s work to continue increasing the number of student members in their target schools and support students’ ongoing investigation of education reform models.

Tides Center for Youth United For Community Action
2135 Clarke Avenue
East Palo Alto, California 94303
Annie Loya, Director
Website: www.youthunited.net

Founded in 1995, Youth United for Community Action (YUCA) is a grassroots community organization created, led, and run by young people of color from majority low-income communities. YUCA operates the FIRE Fellowship, a program for young people of color which provides paid internships with community organizations working for environmental and social justice in the Bay Area and Higher Learning, a program designed to create a safe space where high school youth can come together to examine and act on issues that impact their communities. In May 2007, YUCA gained a huge victory with the shut down of the Romic facility, a 10-year campaign to have the toxic plant closed. YUCA was awarded a $30,000 grant in 2008 and $35,000 in 2009 to continue growing its membership and to focus on local policy making in East Palo Alto that protects the community from being the future site of hazardous waste facilities and to develop their anti-gentrification work focusing on rent control ordinances and policies that protect the community's most vulnerable residents.
